REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS IN MADBURY, N. H.

TO THE SCHOOL BOARD AND CITIZENS OF MADBURY:

This is the seventh annual report I have had the honor to submit.

The only change in personnel made this year has been to employ Miss Margaret Macdonald, R. N. of Newmarket as School Nurse. Miss Macdonald has had much experience as a Nurse in the Northwood-Newmarket Union and devotes all of her time to school work. The extra expense is covered by the increased State Aid. The report of your Nurse for the first half year follows my report.

The names of pupils perfect in attendance is again published and the usual table of statistics. You will note that the Center School reports the highest per cent of attendance since I have been Superintendent. The average for the Town is better than 96½ per cent. Much interest has been manifested on the part of parents and others, since 131 citizen visits were recorded.

Neither of the buildings will need extensive repairs next summer, but the toilet facilities should be improved at the North School and if possible the worn-out blackboards replaced.

An attempt was made to secure Federal Funds to help grade both school yards but to date nothing definite has been accomplished. I hope that these yards can be further improved and playground apparatus provided. No Federal Funds have been available this year for milk distribution.

Seventeen pupils were in attendance at Dover High School in the Fall Term.

I was much impressed with the exercises held last summer in connection with the dedication of the Church site and the pageant. Our little future citizens of foreign parentage learned history they will never forget and were made a part of it. If we could so impress more of our aliens throughout the country we should be doing more to prevent the spread of crime elsewhere, although we do not believe it to be rampant in our state.

Our teachers work hard and their work is showing results. We need not be ashamed of our schools as comparative tests show them to be maintaining a reasonable standard.

Respectfully submitted,

HOWARD L. WINSLOW,

Supt. of Schools.

ELIZABETH ARVILLA GERRISH

Born in West Newfield, Maine, March 7, 1854, the daughter of Hiram Smiley Whitten and Julia Maddox. Died in Madbury, N. H., Nov. 7, 1935.

In the passing of Mrs. Gerrish the town loses one of its most valuable citizens. As the wife of Gardner E. Gerrish to whom she was married May 19, 1872 she came to live in our town, and for a span of forty years shared our problems, our neighborly joys and griefs and became a most helpful and reliable member of the community. The prominence of the Gerrish family as one of the oldest and most influential in the town gave her the best opportunities for her good deeds, and kind hearted sympathies. To raise a family of children, and to help each to become a useful citizen in this progressive age, requires the exercise of all the faculties that one can possess as well as courage and a basic understanding of life.

Mrs. Gerrish did not fail in these characteristics. She was an exemplary mother and home-maker, and performed all her home and community duties in the most faithful manner. She was a member of the Granite State Lodge of Odd Ladies, also a member of the Baptist Church in Dover, N. H.

Through her husband, Mrs. Gerrish was connected with the earliest settlers of the Bellamy River section. Capt. Paul Gerrish in the early part of 1700 acquired the sole right to the Bellamy River from his father, John Gerrish, who had married the daughter of Major Richard Waldron, the sole owner. This Capt. Paul erected a saw mill between the two hills, commonly called thereafter the "Mill Hills". His brother, Timothy, later built a grist-mill on the opposite side of the road. These two mills were kept in running order for over a century and supplied the inhabitants with sawed lumber, and other necessities of life for nearly 200 years.

Capt. Paul also build a Garrison on the top of the hills where he lived. The remains of the foundation can be traced at the present time—a few rods south of the house owned by Mr. William Sanders.

Mr. Gardner Gerrish traced his descent directly from Capt. Paul while his son Mr. Fred E. Gerrish, our present townsman and tax collector, is the great great grandson of Capt. Paul and by a strange coincidence is living, with his most worthy family of one son and two daughters, on land immediately adjacent to the old garrison, and is taking the Gerrish name and good deeds to future generations.

WILLIAM HENRY KNOX

In the passing of William H. Knox on January third, after a long illness, Madbury lost one of its most loyal and best known citizens. Although he was a native of Massachusetts, his paternal ancestors were among the original settlers of Pembroke, N. H., having been given grants of land by Governor Shupe as an inducement to emigrate. Through this branch of the family he was eligible for membership in the Sons of the American Revolution and the Society of the Cincinnati since he was direct in descent from a revolutionary major.

Mr. Knox was born in Charlestown, Mass., on October 5, 1867, the son of William Penn Knox and Carrie Porter. He never knew his lovely young mother for she died when he was fourteen months old. Until he married he lived with his Grandmother Knox (nee Walker, the daughter of a Charlestown brick-maker for whom Walker Street in Charlestown was named—the street being originally the lane to their home and brick yard). Mr. Knox attended the public schools of Charlestown. His schooling ended with his graduation from grammar school. However, through reading and through contact with people in all walks of life he had a broad outlook and was (despite the fact that he had been handicapped since he was eight years old by defective hearing) a genial companion.

At the age of nineteen with money borrowed from his father he entered the teaming business in Boston. He increased his business from time to time until he owned a number of horses and had several men in his employ.

Mr. Knox was a member of a militia company for ten years and went to muster at Framingham each summer. He first joined Company A the 5th Regiment of Infantry and later the Boston National Lancers, a troop of cavalry. He went with this group to New Orleans to a Mardi Gras festival. This was the first northern military company to go south after the Civil War. They were royally entertained, however, and by their friendliness helped to make the south less bitter.

On May 8, 1895 he married Elizabeth E. Berry (also a native of Charlestown), the daughter of Henry A. Berry (born in Dover, N. H.) and Eunice Hay of Portland, Maine, both of revolutionary ancestry. Five children were born of this union. The second, Carrie Porter, died in infancy; the rest grew to maturity at the farm in Madbury and were educated at the local school, Dover High, and the U. of N. H.

It was in looking for a chance to better his fortunes that, with the promise of an opening in this section, he leased what was then known as the Oliver Waldron farm for the summer of 1903 with the option of buying in the fall. Although the opening did not prove what he had hoped, the family never went back to Massachusetts to live and Madbury became their home. The house, one of the oldest in this section, they improved from time to time until it is one of the most comfortable and homey to be found anywhere.

Mr. Knox was essentially a home loving man and always enjoyed having people visit his home. He was temperate in his habits and neither drank nor smoked. He was very fond of children and made a great deal of them. For a few years he was content to remain on the farm, the products of which and the income from the teaming business supplied the family's simple needs. These years were probably among the happiest of his life. Then, no radios brought entertainment and so every night he read aloud to his group of interested but not critical listeners which was often augmented by the hired man.

With the growing demands of his family urging him on he was at various times, a grain dealer, inspector of motor vehicles and a deputy sheriff. He finally took up road building at which he was very successful.

During the World War he was chairman for Madbury of every drive held in the state and put the town over every time.

He was always a staunch republican. His first connection with the party was as a boy when he joined what was known as the Henry Cabot Lodge Cadets—a group of young men who helped put over the election that started Henry Cabot Lodge on his long and useful career in the United States Senate. They had a drum corp and the rest carried transparencies with “Lodge for Senator” on them. They took part in every torch-light parade (and there were many that year) for miles around Boston.

Later he took a more active part in the real doings of his party. He represented Madbury eight times at the General Court and was Sargeant-at-Arms of the Senate for four sessions. He was three times a member of the Constitutional Convention and almost always was a delegate to the Republican State Convention. He was town treasurer of Madbury for twenty-one years and selectman for one term, always having the interest of the town at heart and trying every way to keep the expenses down while keeping the standard of the town high.

He was forest-fire warden of the town since the creation of the office as part of the N. H. Forestry work until his death, a period of more than twenty-five years and his reappointment was ready for mailing at that time.

The only social affiliation that he kept up during life was Odd Fellowship. When he was twenty-one he joined the Olive Branch Lodge of Charlestown and later transferred to the Mount Pleasant Lodge of Dover thus rounding out nearly fifty years of Odd Fellowship.

He was past master of Cocheco Grange and had taken all of the degrees in the grange including the national.

His ready wit added merriment to any company. The following incident is told with great gusto by a member of a party of legislators including Mr. Knox who visited

Montreal several years ago. Having learned who they were, the commander of the old fort at Quebec detailed one of his young officers to show them around and explain everything of interest. Among the other things was a very small cannon mounted on a base and occupying a prominent position. The young officer pointed to it with pride and explained that it was captured by the British from the Americans at the battle of Bunker Hill. He further added that there were several historical societies in the States that had tried to get hold of it. Mr. Knox walked around the cannon eyeing it critically then said, "You think a lot of this cannon, don't you?" "Oh, yes sir, we do!" "Well," exclaimed Mr. Knox "you can keep the darned thing, we have the hill!"

Throughout his life Mr. Knox possessed to a considerable degree many fine and noble characteristics. Because of his sound judgment, a spirit of fairness, his keen executive ability, and a willingness to venture, he naturally became a leader among his fellows and in the community of whose life he was a part.

At various times he had charge of groups of workers, men of widely varied temperaments, with whom he was signally successful, due to his exercise of sane and reasonable requirements and to his fair, yet firm, disciplinary measures. As motor vehicle inspector he stood rigidly for the law. Absolutely fearless of consequences, he sharply reprimanded, if necessary, the official in high standing, who, to his mind was a more serious offender than the youth, who needed not so much a stern enforcement of the law, as a bit of fatherly advice.

But the traits which, perhaps, will be longest remembered and deeply cherished are those commonly associated with the simple things of life: the pleasant smile, the cheery word of greeting, or the bit of mirthful pleasantry, all so characteristic of the man. Children will remember his little attentions and kindnesses to them; neighbors, his pleasure in being able to accommodate; the sick and infirm, a friendly call, or cheer and comfort brought in a very material way; there are those who, by his advice, have been helped to solve some troublesome problem; and there are those who, in dire financial distress, have cause to remember this generous friend who bridged them over. Too numerous are these little acts of kindness and friendly assistance ever to be recorded, but there was One who once said, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto Me."

A person whose life has thus been lived, is, at passing, sorely missed; and many may truthfully say, "I have indeed lost a friend."

The guiding motive of the life of Mr. Knox may be expressed in the words of the poet:

"I'd like to think when life is done
 That I had filled a needed post,
 That here and there, I'd paid my fare
 With more than idle talk and boast;
 That I had taken gifts divine,
 The breath of life and manhood fine,
 And tried to use them now and then
 In service for my fellow men.

I'd like to think that here and there
 When I am gone, there shall remain
 A happier spot, that might have not existed
 Had I toiled for gain;
 That someone's cheery voice and smile
 Shall prove that I had been worthwhile;
 That I had paid with something fine
 My debt to God for life divine."
